

Early College Credit and Dual Credit

Qualified students may earn college credit through either dual credit or early college credit programs. Students must be working towards the College Preparatory Certificate which includes a GPA of at least a 3.0, at least 26 total credits, and a minimum ACT score of 21. Check your student handbook for additional details for the College Preparatory Certificate. Additional requirements may be required for some courses. Check with the instructor for that course.

If you plan to attend other universities, you will need to check with the registrar at the receiving institution to evaluate how dual/early college credit classes will transfer.

Early College Credit (ECC): Qualified students with the principal's recommendation are allowed to leave campus to take courses at Southeast Missouri State University. This is generally limited to missing one class period per SEMO class taken. Students may also take courses via electronic media. No high school credit is granted for ECC classes.

Dual Credit: Some Notre Dame courses may be taken for both high school and college credit. Either Southeast Missouri State University or St. Louis University grants college credit for select classes. Currently college credit is available in the English, foreign language, math, science, and fine arts departments. Additional fees are paid to the appropriate university.
